Here are a few of our favorite stroller-friendly trails in Seattle:

- Discovery Park Loop Trail: This 2.8-mile loop trail is mostly flat and paved, making it a great option for strollers. The trail offers stunning views of the Puget Sound, the Olympic Mountains, and the Cascade Mountains.
- Green Lake Park Loop Trail: This 2.8-mile loop trail around Green Lake is another great option for strollers. The trail is mostly flat and paved, and it offers plenty of shade. You can also stop at one of the many picnic areas along the way.

- Alki Trail: This 2.5-mile trail along the Alki Beach waterfront is a great option for a leisurely stroll. The trail is mostly flat and paved, and it offers stunning views of the Puget Sound and the Olympic Mountains.
- Burke-Gilman Trail: This 20-mile trail follows the Burke-Gilman railroad line through Seattle. The trail is mostly flat and paved, making it a great option for strollers. You can explore different sections of the trail, or you can ride the entire length of the trail.
- Washington Park Arboretum: This 230-acre park is home to a variety of trees and plants from around the world. The park has several stroller-friendly trails, including the Azalea Way Trail, the Rhododendron Glen Trail, and the Japanese Garden Trail.

These are just a few of the many stroller-friendly trails in Seattle. With so many options to choose from, you're sure to find the perfect trail for your family.

Tips for Strolling with Strollers:

- Choose a stroller that is easy to maneuver and has good suspension. This will make it easier to push the stroller on uneven terrain.
- Bring plenty of snacks and drinks for both you and your little ones.
- Be sure to wear comfortable shoes and clothing.
- Start your walk early in the morning or late in the afternoon to avoid the heat of the day.
- Be aware of your surroundings and be careful of other pedestrians and cyclists.
- Have fun!

Strolling with strollers is a great way to get some exercise and enjoy the beautiful nature of Seattle. So grab your stroller and your little ones and head out on one of these stroller-friendly trails today.
